THE DANTE PRIZE.

The prize offered for 1889-1890 was awarded to Mr. C. S. LATHAM, of the class of 1884, A.B. Harvard, 1888, for a translation of the Letters of Dante with a historical and critical comment. Mr. Latham died on July 21, 1890. He did not live to learn the award of the prize.

In accordance with the desire of his mother, the prize adjudged to him of one hundred dollars was offered again to be competed for. The competition was opened not only to the students in any department of Harvard University, and to Harvard graduates of not more than three years' standing, but also to students and graduates, of similar standing, of any college or university in the United States.

The Latham Prize was awarded in 1902. The Dante Society, therefore, now renews its offer of an annual prize of one hundred dollars for the best essay by a student in any department of the University, or by a graduate of not more than three years' standing, on a subject drawn from the life or works of Dante. The competition will henceforth be open to students and graduates, of similar standing, of any college or university in the United States.

For the year 1902-1903 the subjects proposed are as follows:

1. A Review of Kraus's "Dante" (1897), Paget Toynbee's "Dante Dictionary" (1898), and Scartazzini's "Enciclopedia Dantesca" (1896-1898).

2. The credibility of Boccaccio's "Vita di Dante," and of what he tells concerning Dante in his "Commento."

3. The verse endings in the Divina Commedia in which Dante has made "li vocaboli dire nelle sue rime altro che quello ch'erano appo gli altri dicatori usati di sprimere" (Ottimo Commento, Inf. x, 85).

4. A translation of the Quaestio de Aqua et Terra, and a discussion of its authenticity.

5. A collection of all the passages in the prose works of Dante directly illustrative of the Divina Commedia, arranged in order as a comment upon it.

6. A critical comment of the De Vulgari Eloquentia.

For the year 1903-1904:

1. The credibility of Boccaccio's "Vita di Dante," and of what he tells concerning Dante in his "Commento."

2. The verse endings in the Divina Commedia in which Dante has made "li vocaboli dire nelle sue rime altro che quello ch' erano appo gli altri dicitore usati di sprimere" (Ottimo Commento, Inf. x, 85).

3. A collection of all the passages in the prose works of Dante directly illustrative of the Divina Commedia, arranged in order as a comment upon it.

4. A critical comment of the De Vulgari Eloquentia.

5. Visions of Hell, Purgatory, or Paradise of earlier date than the Divina Commedia.

Essays must be deposited with the Dean of Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., on or before the first day of May.

Essayists are at liberty to write on any one of the subjects which have been proposed in the years during which the Dante Prize has been offered.

On the title-page must be written an assumed name and a statement of the writer's standing, i.e., whether he is a graduate or an undergraduate (and of what college or university); if he is an undergraduate, to what class he belongs, and to what department of the college or university. Under cover with the essay must be sent a sealed letter, containing the true name and address of the writer, and superscribed with his assumed name.

The essays must be written upon letter paper, of good quality, of the quarto size, with a margin of not less than one inch at the top, at the bottom, and on each side, so that they may be bound up without injury to the writing. The sheets on which the essay is written must be securely stitched together.

The judges of the essays are a committee of the Dante Society.

In case the judges decide that no essay submitted to them deserves the full prize, they are at liberty to award one or two prizes of fifty dollars, or to award no prize.

The Dante Society has the privilege of retaining and depositing in the Dante Collection of the Harvard College Library any or all essays offered in competition for the Dante Prize, whether successful or not.
